In Montreal, witty bilingual English-French puns appeared on shop signs, to slyly get around the restrictive language legislation. A couple of years later, similar techniques were used in logos for state-run businesses in Brussels (e.g. the Centre of Fine Arts was renamed "BOZAR"). The analysis of the rationale behind these so-called "bilingual winks" (Lamarre 2014) and overall of people's reaction to them appeared to be a surprisingly efficient magnifying glass that reveals positionings towards touchy language issues as well as power relations and stakes in both bilingual cities.

Der Gastvortrag findet auf Englisch statt. Dozierende, Studierende und weitere Interessierte sind zu diesem Gastvortrag herzlich eingeladen.
